The Puaoi Ohana -- Two Hundred Years at Lawai Kai

This family history was researched and written by Betty Snowden in 1996, and the Kaua'i Historical Society has added it to our "Memories of Kaua'i" archive to preserve the history of the family and the unique valley in which they lived.

The family records date back to 1720, the family cemetery dates to mid-1800s, about the time that the missionaries were becoming active in the area, and changing burial rites were becoming more common on Kaua'i. Following the Mahele in 1848, formal land documents were established for the family's property in Lawai Kai, which included two parcels.

Ms. Snowden's excellently written family history begins with Makaea, great-grandfather, and outlines six generations from 1790 through 1990. A chart accompanies the written account, as well as photographs. Personal memories of grandparents and grand-aunts and uncles, childhood memories of daily life, and often told family history and legends are included.

Photocopies of handwritten family genealogy provide detail, distribution of lands in 1883, inventory of the family grave site by William Kikuchi and Susan Remoaldo completed in 1992. The legal distribution of lands, dated January 17, 1883, is handwritten, and a photocopy of the original document is provided.
